Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Abraham Lincoln: A Response at the Annual Banquet of the Marquette Club of Chicago, on the Birthday of Abraham Lincoln, February 12th, 1895 If the Marquette Club were called upon to give a justification for its existence it could find it here and now. One name to-night is in every heart and upon every lip, and that name belongs in a certain special sense to you. It belongs to you because your organization is based upon the ideas, the hope and the faith that were in him. It belongs to you as the lighthouse does to the mariner who steers his bark by its steadfast ray. Whatever sad and heroic memories cluster around his great career, something of their glory, some breath of their fragrance, rests upon all who strive to make the United States of America such a nation as Abraham Lincoln strove to make it. I bid you, therefore, good cheer, Mr. President, and salute you and your club with the old-time greeting of an old-time Republican. Carlyle was not far from right...
