German-Australians are the largest minority group in the nation as it joins the rest of the British Empire to fight against Germany. How are they to deal with the sudden hostility of their neighbours and the Government? Amid immense suffering caused by conflicting adults, how can gifted child-musicians help the world? An adolescent boy in Adelaide, ?City of Churches?, believes Christianity is a way of peace. How can he worship with people who believe God wants him to fight? and perhaps die? in war for the sake of the British Empire? And what will be the fate of his love for one of these people? Exploring timeless themes, Stephen Crabbe?s three connected stories bring to life the state of South Australia in the first years of Federation.
